

NEW SHOWCASE OF ASIAN ART

An 11-inch high jade carving of the Ch'in Dynasty (221-206 B.C.) has a gentle bath to scrub away the collected dust of centuries.

Highly trained specialists and a host of volunteers at the M. H. de Young Museum in San Francisco are currently cleaning, repairing, restoring and checking every fact and facet of a collection of more than 5,000 pieces of Oriental art.

San Franciscans overwhelmingly voted a special bond issue of $2,725,000 to build a special wing, almost doubling the size of the museum, just to house the collection.

The unique collection, said to be one of the finest in the world and still growing, was donated to San Francisco by Avery Brundage, Chicago businessman and president of the International Olympic Committee, after the city agreed to build the wing.

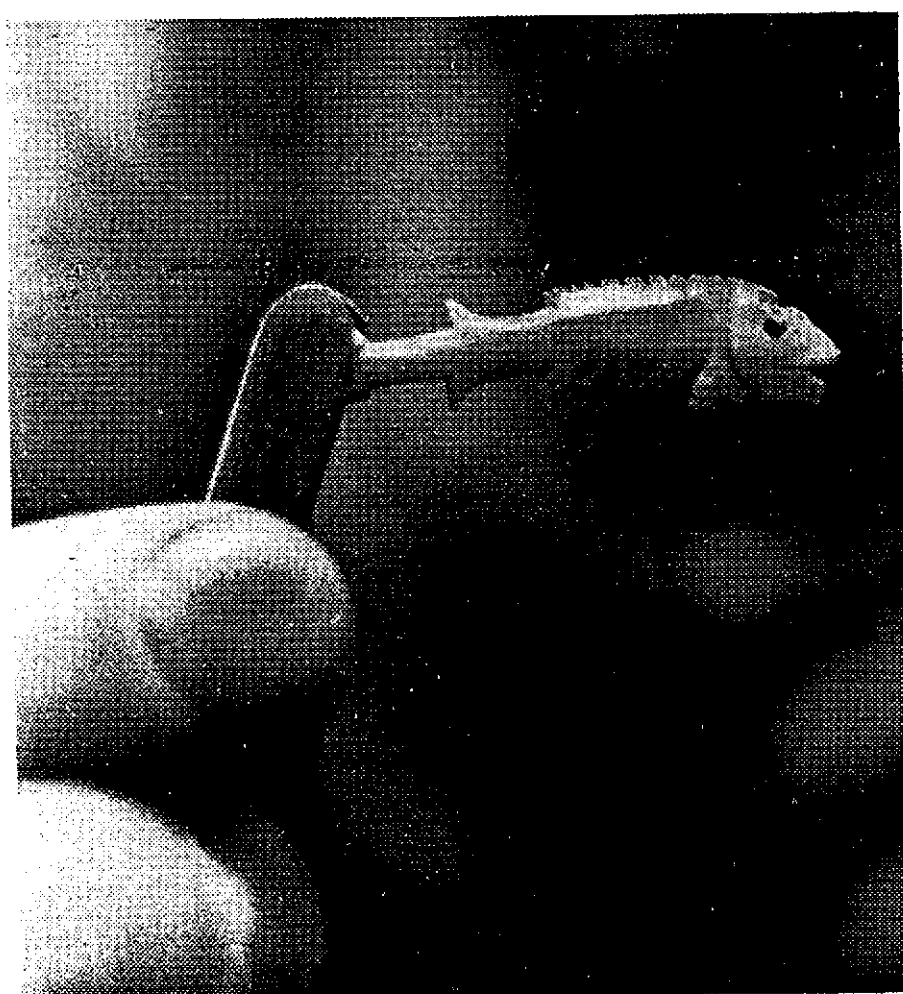

Exhibits in the new wing, which opens in June, cover the past 4,000 years from neolithic times to the present. They will be arranged according to geographic locations with sections devoted to China, India, Tibet, Korea, Annamese Khmer, Siam, Nepal and Persia.

Explaining his choice of San Francisco for the collection, Brundage said he hopes that it, combined with the Bay area's colleges and universities, will form a foundation for appreciation of Oriental culture.

"San Francisco has long been considered the gateway to the Orient," he explained. "Now we're building a bridge of knowledge through studies of these art objects."

Rene-Yvon d'Argence, curator of the Brundage collection, left, and de Young Museum director Jack McGregor, examine earthenware and bronze cooking vessels 4,500 years old.

A neolithic jade fish, scarcely an inch-and-a-half long, is precise in every anatomical detail but so old it's calcified.

Roger Broussal, conservator of the collection, uses a dentist's pick and special colored glue to restore a finger to an ancient porcelain Buddha.

A Naga-style painting is examined with the infrared light of a military sniper scope by research assistant Yoshiko Kakudo to detect retouching.

Prof. James Cahill of the University of California conducts a class in Chinese art for volunteers who will later give lecture tours to visitors.

Mrs. Paul Bissinger, prominent patron of the arts and one of many volunteers at the museum, prepares cross-reference file of the collection.

Life in Arkansas

By J. C. TILLMAN
Associated Press Writer

At this time of year, life in Arkansas is:
Memories of feet of snow gradually erased by wispy, tender leaves venturing out to test the spring air.

A fellow worker sneaking out before dawn to hit a small creek for half-a-dozen big white bass.

A small child confused over the flowers on that "redbug tree".

A wife urging, "weed that flower bed so I can plant the petunias," and hubby hoping for rain to put off the job.

State Publicity and Parks Commission workers getting ready for another booming tourist season.

Toddlers, let out barefeet for the first time since they saw daylight, oohing at the feel of grass between their toes.

Matrons in garden putting clothes wandering through a nursery, picking out spring colors for their lawns.

The excitement of a brand new, open season on politicians.

Kids coming home late from school because they stopped "just for a short game of baseball."

Farmers facing the hard-work challenge of another crop year, eyeing the skies for signs of spring rains.

Motorists rolling their car windows down—all the way. Brave ones with their convertible top down.

Fishing dock operators busily readying boats, motors, boat supplies.

Weary forest rangers wondering why any idiot would drop a burning match or lit cigarette in timber dry woods.

Sol Swindle has been swindled at Mt. Ida.

In his cafe business, he had a sign boasting his brother's lumber firm.

It read: "Barefoot Lumber Co. — Another Swindle Enterprise."

The sign was known widely, but recently it disappeared.

"I've been swindled," said Swindle. "Somebody stole the sign."

HOPE (ARK.) STAR, Printed by Offset Roundup of Texas Summer Fashions

Summer fashions by the designers of Texas have a cool, crisp look. The sailor-look (left) by Jo Jr. of Dallas is in washable cotton. Red or navy top ships out with V-neck, bounded by braid trim and sports a striped dickey. Nautical belt battens down low-slung skirt. Jeanne Durrell of Dallas designs the tennis-type overblouse and permanent pleated skirt (center). Sharply contrasting stripes are counterpointed by crisp, white linen collar and long muscled tie of stylized flower print by Kabro of Houston (right). Dress is lined in matching print.

The western look was well-represented in stove-pipe leg pants slung low from the hip and cherry-picker print shirts. And the bandana print still holds its own in popularity in shifts and shirtdresses.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—It's roundup time in Texas this week. But not one herd of cattle will be seen at the event.

Dallas is holding its annual fashion roundup, an event at which the talented designers of Texas show their summer collections.

The hemline has come in for much discussion this season. Maintaining the Texas view of ladylike femininity, most Texas designers have ended the debate on daytime skirt lengths by holding the hemline at the middle of the knee.

The sportswear designers have made lavish use of Tahitian and Hawaiian prints in colorful teams of sleek pants and midriff-baring tops.

And the influence from south of the border was seen in both an authentic Paisley poncho skimming over straw slim pants and in a ball-fringe-trimmed bare midriff top doffed partly from match-heavily on summer double knits for travel ensembles, guaranteed to stay crisp, fresh and wrinkle-free whether packed or worn on a trip.

For evening, feminine ruffles and laces go sophisticated when given a unique Texas treatment. A double bank of inverted ruffles at the side of one strapless peau de soie gown emerges into a dust ruffle around its belled skirt.

The most unusual fabric used for formal wear was

Loans to Pay for College

A college education today may or may not stretch Junior's I.Q. but it does make his Old Man a whiz at borrowing from Peter to pay Paul. Financing a college education is an experience more parents encounter each year as costs of higher education increase.

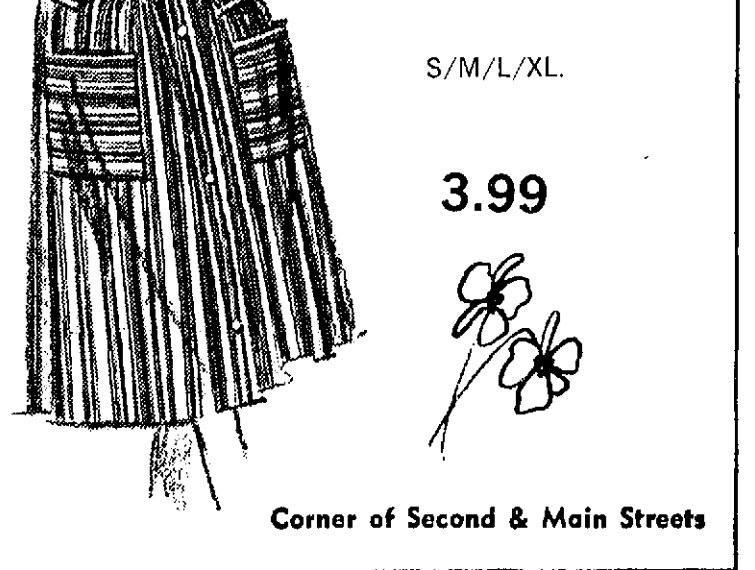

According to a report by the U. S. commissioner of education, college students or their parents borrowed about $14 million, mostly from school loan funds, in the academic year 1955-56. Little short of a decade later their counterparts borrowed about $250 million from colleges, federal and state loan programs. They also borrowed another $100 million from commercial banks, finance companies, savings and loan associations and credit unions.

More students work part-time to help defray expenses, but John C. Hoy, dean of admissions and assistant to the president of Wesleyan University, estimated parents would invest $10,000 to $16,000 for tuition, room, board, books, travel and incidental expenses for a four-year period. In his NEA series, Getting Into College, Hoy estimated annual expenses for an eastern college at $3,240 and expenses for a resident at a state university at $1,620 (nonresidents tack on an additional $400 to $500 in tuition).

The high school pupil in the top of his class can look forward to qualifying for merit scholarships and grants which help some. The average student who makes it to college may not qualify for these. Whatever scholarship qualifications, the high school senior

Youth Asked For It!
This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles, and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage question to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help US, this newspaper.

Parents Can Be Thoughtlessly Cruel
Dear Helen: I am a girl of 14. When I read about parent problems, I wonder if anyone has mine.

My parents argue constantly. Not every week, but every single evening. Sometimes I dread going home from school because I might as well be on the battleground in Viet Nam. That isn't my real problem though.

I am living in constant fear that my mother is going to die or kill herself. Everytime they fight, she says, "I hope I die," or something like that.

To think of losing someone you love as much as I live my mother, well, you just don't know how agonizing it is. I have nightmares and wake up crying, though I've never told her except once and then she took it very lightly.

I have all the material things I could ask for but I'm sure you know this doesn't make a happy home. I don't know where to go when the fighting starts, and even if I ran, I'd hear those words in my brain. — Patches

Dear Patches: I hope your parents — and ALL battling parents — read your letter! If it doesn't get them thinking straight and headed toward a counselor, nothing will.

People who fight constantly pay little attention to the words they use, because they've become habit. In children, however, these words often build fear and dread. Your mother doesn't mean them, Patches, but if she deserves your love she will stop using them, now that she knows. — H.

Why, Oh Why?
Dear Helen: I was reading about the boy whose friends didn't write to him now that he is overseas in the Army. How can anyone be so mean? A girl who "doesn't have time" to write a few lines to a fellow who is fighting to protect her is a real nothing, and it's a good thing he found out before he got serious about her.

These boys that burn their draft cards really fry me. They should be proud they can help their country. Instead they sit back and let mama tell them bedtime stories! It would be someone like this dirty enough to write a rotten letter to a soldier in Viet Nam — or make hateful phone calls to mothers or wives of men who have died over there.

It turns my stomach to see people sit in front of a T V and make fun of our boys in Viet Nam. It isn't funny to die! I hope you print this, Helen, because I'm sure there are lots of others who feel the same. — Disgusted

Dear Dis: I'm happy to print it, because I've heard from more militant peace marchers and would be draft card burners than from sensible people who know we have a job to do. This doesn't mean they're in the majority — heaven's no. It just means that far-out groups shout louder. — H.

Dear Helen: When I read "Faithful's" suggestion about separating high school classes as to sex, I boiled. How Victorian can you get? She said this wouldn't upset anyone but the kids. Don't kids count? Schools are where most of us get our first real social experiences. Mixing the sexes is part of it. Would she segregate offices too? We want to know if the opposite sex has brains before we date. How better than in the classroom? Our school has very few problems with clothes. Should they punish all because only a few show too much leg? — All Of Us.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of Hope Star.

Says Come

Eternity

There is a term to grapple with . . . ETERNITY! Endless past time; endless future time . . . foreverness. That state or condition which begins at death. From everlasting to everlasting . . . ETERNITY. The time it would take the sea gull pictured above to empty the Pacific Ocean into the Atlantic . . . that would be Eternity. It is too big to understand but I know what it means for me. When this earthly house is dismantled, my soul will live on and on. That is actually what it means. But one question: Is my life worth all that? Is yours? Here is where the church can help you to be useful . . . to help bring in the Kingdom . . . to be an Ambassador for God . . . to prepare the world for His coming . . . for ETERNITY.

The Japanese consume 140 million U.S. gallons of sake, their national beverage, annually. This is 40 per cent of the total yearly consumption of alcoholic beverages in Japan. Sake is rice beer. Its brewing dates back to antiquity. It is sometimes mistakenly called wine because of its high alcoholic content, which is usually 17 per cent to 18 per cent. Sake is served warm in tiny porcelain bowls holding little more than an ounce.

WIN AT BRIDGE

East Punishes Greedy South

Today's hand became a problem for East only because the game was match point duplicate. In rubber bridge South would have let his partner play six diamonds and there would have been no defense against that contract. In an effort to play six no-trump for a top score South went from six diamonds to six no-trump and was properly punished for his greed when East made a brilliant third-hand-low play to set him. East went into a long huddle after his partner's spade opening. The automatic play would be to take his ace but he could count 12 sure tricks for declarer if he made that play. South had shown 13-15 points for his two no-trump call and East was looking at 26 points between his own hand and dummy. Therefore the only face card West could hold would be the jack of diamonds. That card would be worthless because South had shown at least three diamonds by his three diamond call. Hence, if East rose with the ace of spades declarer would have two spades, three hearts, five diamonds and two clubs for a total of 12. Could South run off all 13 tricks if East ducked that first spade? He sure could. It all depended on who held the ten of clubs. Give South the ten of clubs and he could pick up East's queen and jack and make four club tricks. Eventually East decided that he would get almost nothing if South made six no-trump but a top score if he beat the contract. Then he ducked the spade and got his top score.

Players Vote Chamberlain NBA's Most Valuable Award

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Wilt Chamberlain of the Philadelphia 76ers was named today the winner of the 11th annual Podoloff Trophy as the most valuable player in the National Basketball Association.

It's the NBA's official award, in a poll taken of all the league's players by Newspaper Enterprise Association. And behind this year's recipient, there's a story . . .

Way back in 1960, when Wilton Chamberlain was seven feet, one inch tall, the players of the NBA voted him the most valuable in their ranks. Wilt was only a rookie, but his impact on the league was tremendous.

He set a new NBA scoring record, hoisted the Philadelphia Warriors from last place to a creditable second. Future: unlimited.

Five years passed. Nothing happened.

Wilt broke every scoring record imaginable . . . 100 points one night, more than 4,000 in a season, better than a 50-point average. But his team never won. And each year, when it came to picking the MVP, the players of the NBA virtually ignored Wilt. In 1965, for instance, Wilt led the NBA in scoring as always. (He has never failed in seven seasons.) He got exactly one vote among the 99 cast . . .

It's now 1966. Wilt's going on 30 years. He's officially listed at 7-1 1/2 in height. Philadelphia is represented by the 76ers instead of the Warriors, who moved to San Francisco. Wilt drives a custom Bentley and wears a goatee and owns apartment houses. But in pro basketball he bears the stigma of problem child. (Last winter, the New York Knicks, offered him in a trade by San Francisco, turned Wilt down. He went to Philadelphia instead—but not before he threatened to quit basketball.)

This season Chamberlain will score fewer points, with a lower per-game average, than at any time in his career. He will, however, still lead the NBA in scoring. And the Philadelphia 76ers are a good bet to end the seven-year, uninterrupted domination of the NBA by the Boston Celtics.

What has made Chamberlain suddenly deserving?

"A look at all the statistics," explains coach Dolph Schayes of the 76ers, "will show he has kept his scoring and percentage, but also upped his assists and rebounded well. He's keyed our fast break and bulwarked our defense. He had a great year, and our team has responded to his leadership."

"This is the strongest group of boys Wilt has played with in his career. Wilt has utilized our strength, and we've utilized his."

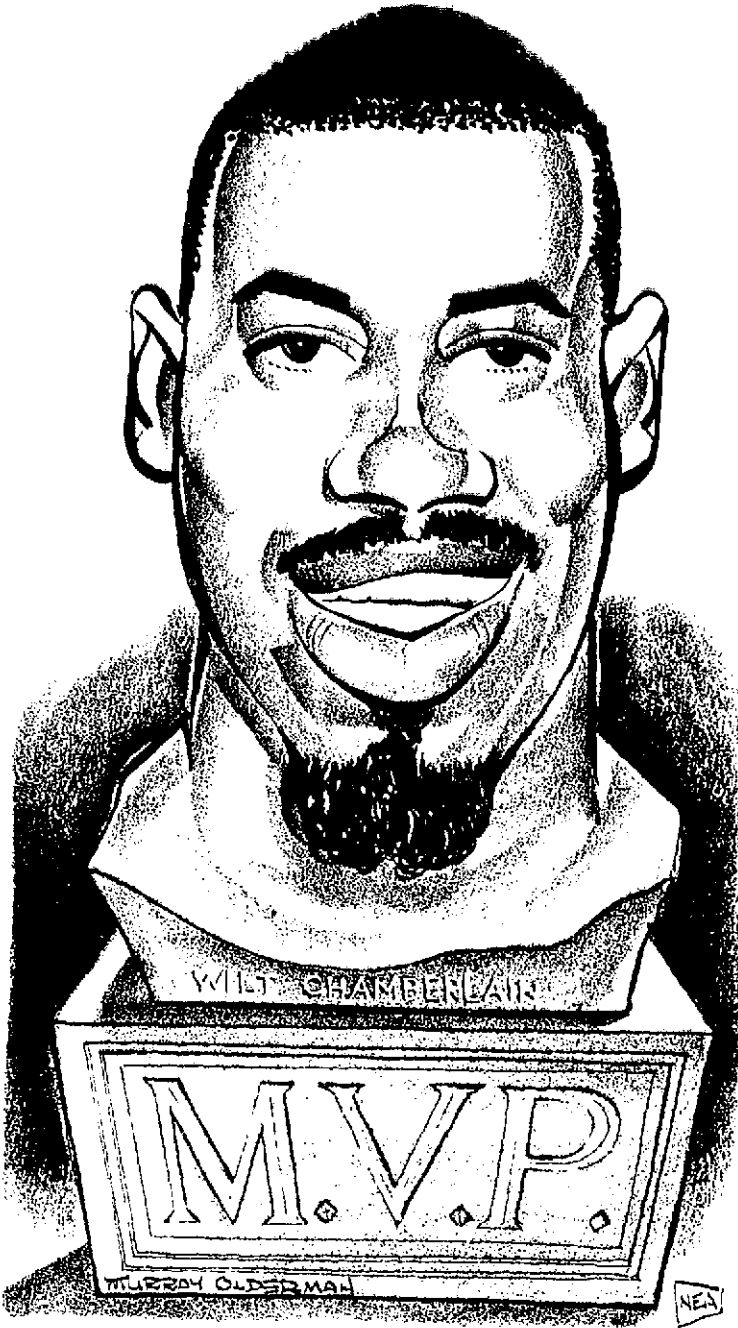

Schayes, it should be noted, has not always been the most enthusiastic endorser of Chamberlain as a team player.

And how does Wilt explain the transformation?

"I feel the main difference is my teammates," he says. "With good outside shooting from fellows like Hal Greer, Chet Walker and Al Bianchi and a bunch of fine rookies, I've been able to play a different type of game. I can pass off a lot, concentrate on defense, set for picks, whereas before I was forced to shoot more."

Mt. Everest was named for Sir George Everest, surveyor-general of India, who determined height of the peak in 1841.

Being his mating call, the . . . A scorpion kills its prey call of the bobwhite is given only by the male of the species. It will also defend itself with this sting.

'Adaptable'

By DAVE BURGIN
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Everybody calls Don Heffner the logical choice as the new manager of the Cincinnati Reds, succeeding Dick Sisler.

This makes Cincinnati owner Bill DeWitt happy. However, their logic isn't necessarily DeWitt's logic.

"It is a plus that Heffner knows our personnel, as a coach for the Mets and as manager for our San Diego farm club for two years," DeWitt expounded. "But what seems more important to me is the KIND of manager Don is."

"I don't believe Don is going to make us a winner just because he managed players like Sammy Ellis, Tommy Harper and others, or because these players know him and like him."

"This is important, yes. But this is another club with a different character in a different league."

"Don's value is his temperament. He's not just a 'nice guy' or a real hard-nose. He's

California Angels

PITCHING—If only the rest of Bill Rigney's team matched the pitching staff. Last season, George Brunet, Marcelino Lopez and Fred Newman all had earned run averages below 3.00. And Dean Chance, No. 1 on the staff, was at 3.15 with a 15-10 record. Bob Lee, the best reliever, appeared in 69 games, had a 1.92 ERA and 21 saves. Aubrey Gatewood also had a fair year in relief. Possible starters are Rudy May and rookie Jim McGlothlin who had an outstanding year in the Pacific Coast League. For emergencies, Rigney has Lew Burdette, now 39. RATING—B.

INFIELD—The Angels have trouble hitting, so they traded with Baltimore for Norm Siebern who will be on first base. Over the years, Siebern has been a solid major leaguer. Another spot that needs work is third base. Paul Schaal hit only 224 last season. His back-up will be Frank Malzone, obtained from the Red Sox. The double-play combination is one of the best with Jim Fregosi at short and Bobby Knoop at second. Knoop (.269) proved last season that he could hit. For Fregosi it has never been a problem. RATING—B-.

OUTFIELD—There could be two rookies in the Angel outfield. Rick Reichardt, the $200,000 bonus baby had a good year in the minors. So did Ed Kirkpatrick. Both have speed and are good defensively. That leaves speedy Jose Cardenal, who stole 37 bases last season, Albie Pearson who led the club in batting (.278) and Willie Smith. One thing is certain, no matter who starts, not many fly balls will fall safely in the new Anaheim Stadium when the opposition is at bat. RATING—C+.

CATCHING—Bob Rodgers had a disappointing 210 year in 1965 but is much better as his past record proves. He's still young so Rigney figures it was just an off-season. Tom Egan and Tom Satriano are the back-up men but until Rodgers slipped so badly last year, Rigney never worried about replacing him. RATING—C+.

BENCH—It resembles a home for the aged with Vic Power, Jimmy Piersall and Joe Adcock. Even so, that's a lot of experience. For spot duty, Rigney is well-covered. RATING—B-.

SUMMARY—With all due respect to Walt Disney, if the Angels do a little hitting, they may become the top attraction in Anaheim. It is a fast club with good defense. This year, they'll have their own home, too. It could be a catalyst. Prediction—7th.

Meschery Relieves Pressure With Poetry

TOM MESCHERY, MAN OF ACTION

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

SAN FRANCISCO — (NEA) — Tom Meschery doesn't know that much about poetic form and structure.

He doesn't even know if his poetry would be acceptable professionally.

All he knows is the enjoyment which comes from creating — and experimenting.

Writing, until now, has been a private enterprise for Tom Meschery.

"I don't think I've told more than three people about it," he said. "But I would like to publish and I would like to receive some critical apprais-als of my work."

"I took only one creative writing course in college and that was just the basic stuff."

Those who crowd the dressing room doors and others who linger around the hotel lobbies for autographs may consider poetry a strange hobby for an athlete like Meschery.

They are accustomed to seeing him differently.

To the fan, Tom Meschery of the San Francisco Warriors is a 6-6, 215-pound forward who is supposed to take rebounds from Wilt Chamberlain and throw in jump shots over Bill Russell's outstretched hands. For five years he has done fairly well, averaging 13 points and nine rebounds per game.

"Images," Meschery said with a shake of the head. "Athletes, especially those in professional basketball, can get up and read a book, too. I'm creative; I'm not unintelligent."

"So I don't think I should be written about or given an image of a friendly old Joe who can talk about sports and nothing else."

"I look at myself as an athlete and an individual. I don't look at myself as an entertainer. Maybe to the people who are watching the game, you're an entertainer. But your job doesn't depend on how well you entertain the fans. It depends on how well you keep your man from scoring."

"After the games are over, I like to be alone. Don't forget we are constantly around people, on the court, on the bench, in the locker rooms."

"While spending this time alone I like to write. It relaxes me."

"I try to keep my poetry simple. I don't even like to put titles on my poems. I want the poetry to be subjective. The reader can draw his own theories."

"I don't think poetry is purely a mood. It's something that comes from above to you."

"My favorites? Well, I like e. e. cummings, Frost and Stephen Crane."

One of his poems concerns Crane:

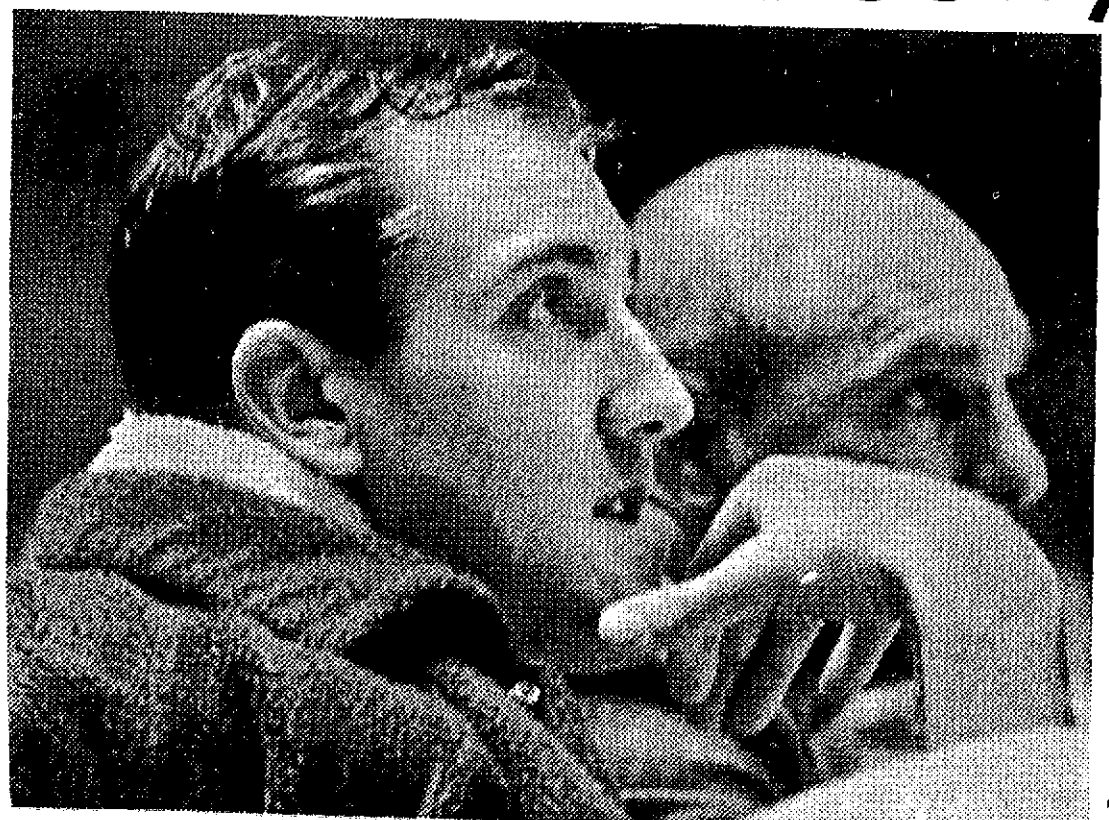

I have read your poetry, Stephen Crane

I like what I read.

I prayed you were wrong.

But what if you are right?

Meschery also has written some short stories and some of his poetry has been published by the Oregon Literary Review.

TOM MESCHERY RELAXES IN A POETIC MOOD

The tension and strain has ended
Forty-eight minutes in our life
Have passed into recollection.

We are exhausted.
Ten minutes, five minutes, an hour ago
We could not admit it.

Sheets of sweat pour from our bodies.
As I look around the black and white of men
Between the rows of hurriedly hung clothes
And knots of inquiring reporters,
I begin to smell my sport.

Bland soap steam
And newly lit cigarettes
Combine with an odor of intense relief.

Slowly I enter
Into the throbbing murmur of voices
And grasping congratulatory hands.
Into the reality of victory.

I don't think we truly comprehend.
What we won today could be lost tomorrow.

Yet we are joyous.

Tired hands and feet and muscles strained
(Beyond the definition of sport)
Were not in vain.

"Put 'er there, Pops."
"Man, that was a sweet win."
"Great game, babe."

I get up and in the shower
I wash away the past
With floods of water
And massage away my aching
With thoughts of cold beer and a night's rest.

As I leave the arena
Attired in gray, black, or blue
As any normal business man
I glance back on my day.
On the now shadowed planks of the basketball court,
And the vacant seats where not long past
The crowd yelled on and on and on.
And a smile creeps slowly on my mouth.

Crime in the South certainly it would seem grounds for elation and pride that the crime rate in the South increased by only one per cent while it soared, according to the FBI, by 12 per cent in the Western states and 7 per cent in the Northeast.

Percentages can be misleading. So can the figures upon which percentages are based. Unfortunately for a long time crime rates have been high in the South. An increase above much crime could be a smaller percentage than any increase where less crime existed before. Also despite the urbanization, which presumably has been attended by the growth of modern police methods, Southern justice is still too much attended by old-time slipshod ways. Semiliterate deputies could be poor statisticians, too. And the crime the FBI reports can only be that which is reported to it. There were no reports to the FBI from law enforcement agencies representing more than 40 million Americans.

Thus these annual FBI reports, while useful as the best figures available, are far from perfectly dependable as to both the nation and the regions in it. The one clear fact they show is the obvious one that there is far too much violence and crime in this greatest nation on earth. Certainly in the South the suggestion that the region is not increasing its crime rates as fast as some other sections should not be made the grounds for any complacency. Whatever the figures may show, it is common knowledge that plenty remains to be done here to reduce, repress and punish the vastly too much crime. — Raleigh (N.C.) News and Observer

A New Idea
In this modern age, we eat, sleep, drive, fly — well, we actually live on credit. Our whole economic system is geared to credit, and now it has invaded our system of jurisprudence. Up in New Albany, Indiana, credit cards are being used to pay parking tickets.

The system works this way: On deposit of five bucks, the local police department issues a window decal which affirms that the motorist will allow deductions from his deposit for any overtime ticket he may receive. If and when he gets a ticket, the policeman deposits a nickel in the parking meter and a pink slip goes to the traffic division which deducts a fine of fifty cents from the deposit.

In most cities, if the offender went to court, or paid off the ticket, it would cost him a dollar up. By this system, he saves on fines and the credit card driver is guaranteed against having his car towed away for a parking violation. Should he be overdrawn on his deposit and the pink slip bounces, the motorist can be fined $25.

Sounds like a good idea — for the motorist and the police department. — Greenville (Miss.) Delta Democrat-Times

Wont Have To Act As Banker

MANILA (AP) — The U.S. State Department won't have to act as banker for a Soviet ocean survey ship whose captain tried to borrow $4,000 for fuel and provisions from the U.S. Embassy here.

The Mariano Olondriz Fernandez Shipping Co. announced today it would provide the funds on behalf of "clients" in Tokyo. Presumably the client is the Soviet mission in Tokyo.

No Communist countries have diplomatic representation in the Philippines. Capt. Yevgeny Ayramenko of the oceanographic ship Vityaz sought the money from the U.S. Embassy last week, saying "the United States and the Soviet Union maintain friendly relations."

The embassy referred the request to the State Department.

Groundbreaking for Die Plant

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) — Ground was broken Thursday for a 20,000-square foot addition to the Industrial Tool and Die Co. plant here.

Charles Oertel, president and general manager, said the program would cost about $100,000. The expansion will double the plant's floor space and add 30 employees to the plant's work force of 80, Oertel said.

Red Congress Orders New Control Plans

By FRED COLEMAN

MOSCOW (AP) — The national congress of the Soviet Communist party, opening Tuesday, will give orders for a five-year economic plan that will bury former Premier Khrushchev's boasts of catching up with the U.S. economy by 1970.

This already has been assured by the published directives for the 1966-70 plan that controls production on every Soviet factory and farm. The directives by the party will determine the Soviet government's final plan.

Western economic specialists agree that the new plan, which drops Khrushchev's ambitious goals, is a more sober, realistic blueprint for Soviet economic growth.

Some, however, believe the new plan is still overly optimistic. The plan is the major agenda item of the 23rd congress of the Soviet Communist party. Of all issues discussed at the meeting of 5,000 Soviet party delegates, plus scores of foreign Communist, the plan may prove to have the greatest significance.

The plan will go a long way toward determining the average Soviet citizen's wages and the clothes, food and other goods he can buy.

The plan will chart the domestic economic strength which will form the basis for the Kremlin's military planning, foreign trade and aid, the space program, and political competition with Red China and the West.

Khrushchev predicted in 1961 that the Soviet Union would overtake the United States in per capita production by 1970.

Bennett to Air Evolution Over CBS

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — CBS News gave Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett an opportunity to state his side in Arkansas' evolution controversy today, and Bennett took full advantage of it.

He said he is defending a state law prohibiting teaching of evolution because the constitution requires him to, but that he personally believes that man was created in the image of God and that evolution is an atheistic doctrine.

Bennett said he did not think it was right that the Bible story of the creation of man cannot be explained in the classroom while the evolution theory can.

He said he would try to prove in court that the law was a reasonable one and a proper exercise of legislative authority.

"I don't believe that the framers of our constitution wanted God removed from the classroom and a theory placed in without restraint," Bennett said.

He questioned why Mrs. Susan Epperson, the teacher who filed the suit, wanted only to teach the evolution theory advanced by Charles Darwin. Bennett said there are many other theories.

The Darwin theory, he said, is a "hodge-podge of hypothetical deduction. It would not stand the test of the laboratory and the microscope."

Bennett said he did not intend to make a spectacle of the lawsuit.

But he has threatened to bring in witnesses to challenge the evolution theory if Judge Murray Reed will permit him to do so.

Kai-shek Elected to Fourth Term

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — The next six years will determine the future of Nationalist China, President Chiang Kai-shek declared today.

The 78-year-old soldier-statesman spoke at the closing session of the National Assembly which elected him Monday to a fourth six-year term as president.

Chiang said the current situation provides opportunities to achieve "our sacred mission — recovery of the mainland." He expressed confidence the mission would succeed.

"The coming six years will be decisive," he said.

EYE WITNESSES—Hillsdale College provided some of the strongest evidence yet on the Michigan U.F.O. sightings. These girls were among 87 at the girls school who observed an eerily glowing object near their dormitory for several hours.

AFT Demands Protection For Teachers

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The American Federation of Teachers demanded today that the United States Office of Education take the initiative in protecting the jobs of Negro teachers in the South.

The AFL-CIO union also said such charges should be considered a violation of federal law.

AFT National President Charles Cogen charged that education department guidelines for establishing school desegregation standards may result in the dismissal of many hundreds of Negro teachers over the next year or so.

Cogen made the charge in a letter to Dr. Harold How II, U.S. Commissioner of Education, which was made public today.

The AFT said the education department is urging local school districts to close small, inadequate schools for Negro students.

"This is fine," Cogen said, "because no one wants to have an inadequate school. But the USOE should also suggest, as a guideline, that teachers in such schools be re-employed elsewhere within the district."

"Not to do so is an invitation for any school district to attempt to evade the anti-discrimination guideline."

The AFT said federal aid to education is applied as a supplement to local effort, and that local school districts may not decrease their own financial support of the schools while accepting aid money.

"Any diminution of total staff," the letter said, "should be viewed as contrary to the federal aid law since federal aid must be in addition to contemplated levels of local efforts."

"These teachers are needed now in their own localities," Cogen said. "Forcing a teacher to pick up his goods and chattels and move elsewhere is bad for the teacher, bad for his students, and bad for society."

Communist Junk Burns; Kills 13

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
MACAO (AP) — A cargo junk from Communist China smashed into a breakwater here Wednesday night and exploded. Thirteen crewmen died in the fire that followed.

One of two known survivors, Kwok Sin-king, 30, said the junk left Canton Tuesday for Hainan Island with a cargo of sulphite.

Other sources said sulphite was not normally considered explosive and doubted it would have exploded with such force. The explosion shook Macao's waterfront area.

Communist China reportedly has been using seagoing junks to carry oil, jet fuel, and war supplies to Red military installations on Hainan Island, across the Gulf of Tonkin from North Viet Nam.

EROS Device To Prevent Air Crash

By JERRY CURRY

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — An airplane pilot suddenly hears a beeping sound, looks to his dash panel, sees an arrow pointing upward, and swings his craft in that direction.

That, McDonnell Aircraft Corp., said Thursday, is how air collision can be prevented.

McDonnell calls it Eliminate Range Zero System (EROS), a device that first warns the pilot airplane dangerously and then shows him what action to take — up, down or level off.

"This could have prevented air collisions that have taken hundreds of lives in the past," said one McDonnell spokesman. "It could have prevented the crash of two airliners over the Grand Canyon in 1956 that killed 128 persons."

EROS gives a 60-second warning at speeds of up to four times the speed of sound and beeps a collision signal at 1½ miles apart for subsonic air speeds.

William Osmun, manager of technical information services for the Air Transport Association, said in Washington that "as far as we know, McDonnell is more advanced than anybody in this field. We don't know of anybody else who has the actual hardware ready."

The Federal Aviation Agency, airlines representatives and military officials have been discussing the collision avoidance device with McDonnell for some time. No specific production plans have yet been made.

McDonnell, builder of U.S. spacecraft, did not say what the system would cost, "because there are too many variables." The spokesmen said the only possible collisions between airplanes using the device "would come during tight military formation flying when planes are within feet of each other."

Work began on EROS in 1957 and was intensified in 1960 when two fighter planes collided over the St. Louis McDonnell plant and two men were killed.

McDonnell has been testing 26 of the warning systems in the company's Phantom jets, manufactured for the U.S. armed forces. EROS is mounted under the aircraft. It can protect 1,000 planes at a time within a 40-mile radius of each other.

EROS works by radio signals transmitted every two seconds. Calculation of the time delay between transmission from one plane and reception by another enables the device to measure the distance between planes, the rate of approach, and the altitude of both aircraft. Pilots are told at the same time what to do by up-and-down arrows or a red level-off light in their cabins.

8,000 Girl Scouts to Hear Founder

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Lady Baden-Powell, founder of the Girl Scouts, is scheduled to speak to about 8,000 Girl Scouts here Saturday.

She is the widow of Lord Baden-Powell, who founded the Boy Scouts. She started the Girl Scouts in 1917.

Asks $708,000 To Expand Facilities

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Southwest Arkansas Telephone Co-operative asked the state Public Service Commission today for authority to borrow $708,000 to expand its facilities in rural areas in Southwest Arkansas and Northeast Texas.

The company said it would build a new exchange at Doddridge in Miller County. It already has exchanges at Fouke, Trigg and Garland City in Miller County; Fulton and Washington in Hempstead County; and Emerson in Columbia County.

The cooperative said it needed facilities to make rural telephone service available to an additional 700 subscribers and to provide service for a paper mill to be built near McNab in Hempstead County.

Alderman Must Run City-Wide

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Atty. Gen. Bruce Bennett advised City Attorney D. P. Moran of Batesville today that aldermen in first-class cities are required to run city-wide.

Bennett said that Act 404 of 1965 changed the law on election of aldermen. Previously, a city could pass a special ordinance declaring that aldermen run only in the ward in which they live.

The new law requires aldermen to live in the ward from which they seek to be elected, but the must run at large.

Mayor Sam Williamson of Reyno was advised that candidates for municipal offices in incorporated towns can still qualify for the ballot by circulating petitions.

Williamson asked if new laws required these officials to run in primary elections.

Students Will Select Projects

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Teachers at Khoo No secondary school in the south Thailand city of Nakorn Sritammaraj decided it would be good for students to select their own projects for a handicraft class.

All 11 pupils of the fifth grade made pistols which officials said were capable of shooting fatal projectiles.

"The workmanship is perfect," the school's headmaster cabled the Education Department in Bangkok today. "It seems beyond belief."

The headmaster said he confiscated all the weapons. He asked the Education Department what he should do next.

The Education Department said it was studying the matter.

Snow Showers Fall On Paris

PARIS (AP) — Snow showers fell on Paris during the night as a cold snap interrupted an early spring. Temperatures were below freezing.

The snow melted on contact with streets and sidewalks but froze on car windshields.

High temperatures during the past week had brought out buds on trees along the Avenue des Champs Elysees.

Junior Auxiliary To Sponsor Famous Nicol Marionettes At Hope High On March 30th

By MARY ANIT ALASETER
Star Feature Writer

When the story is that of Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp and the performers are puppets like the Nicol Marionettes the show is bound to be good and enjoyable for those of all ages. That's why the Junior Auxiliary of Hope is proud to sponsor the appearance of the world famous Nicol Marionettes in a sparkling story of fun and adventure. There will be two performances at Hope High School on Wednesday, March 30, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

Aladdin in the Nicol version, is a musical extravaganza filled with tricks, illusions and stunts that will delight the children. There are magicians, vanishing genies, a flying carpet, a now-you-see-it now-you-don't castle, and a cast of lavishly costumed marionettes telling the story of magic, mystery, and suspense.

The newest tricks of lighting and sound technique have been used to make this Nicol play a theater experience the children will never forget. The setting and properties were designed by William Pitkin, noted Broadway designer, and many wonderful things are promised to those who attend.

For instance, the stage bustles with excitement at the colorful market square in Old Baghdad. The sets glitter with hundreds of jewels in the cave, and the lavishness of the Sultan's palace is a sight to behold. Then as you would imagine, traveling through space on the magic carpet is a great adventure.

The wooden actors have a truly human appeal in their lively actions and their individual characters. There is the bright hero, Aladdin, the pompous old Sultan, the pretty Princess, the cunning Magician, the funny court assistants, and many others.

The marionettes are dressed in the most exotic fabrics available in the world's largest textile market — New York City. Eleanor Koelinger, who has costumed stars of the Broadway stage, worked tirelessly to create the brilliant costumes for the marionettes with imagination and great style. As for the music, melodic tunes from the classics enliven the action of the play.

The children in the audience will participate in the play and will share the final triumph of Aladdin when he overcomes the power of the genie and when he earns his reward. The story begins a long time ago in Old Baghdad where there lived a powerful and greedy Sultan who had a pretty daughter. He kept her so well protected that she had no friends and was, therefore, very lonesome.

Across town lived a poor widow and her young son. You guessed it. His name was Aladdin. Eventually these young people became sweethearts but not before exciting adventures that deal with a Magician, his famous Genie of the fabulous Lamp, and other characters appear.

Children of all ages will want to see Aladdin and his Wonderful Lamp. The date is March 30 and the place is Hope High School Auditorium. The curtain will rise promptly at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Admission is: Children 25c and Adults 50c. Mrs. George Frazier in charge of the local appearance under the sponsorship of the Hope Junior Auxiliary. For further information contact her at PR 7-2370.

Speakers in recent years have included, in addition to Johnson and Eisenhower, Gov. George W. Romney of Michigan, and astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Miller, president of Gannett Newspapers, Rochester, N.Y., will preside at the meeting.

The AP members will hear the annual report of their board of directors, vote to fill seven vacancies on the 18-member board, and vote on the application of 29 associate newspaper members to become regular members.

Mother And Son Both In Court

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The prospective juror eyed the prosecutor, the prosecutor eyed the juror in kind, did a double take, and the juror was no longer even prospective.

"Oh, my gosh!" exclaimed May Reichmann, "that's my son."

"Hello, mother," said Deputy Dist. Atty. Joseph Reichmann, who was preparing for a robbery-narcotics trial.

Judge James H. Dansby excused Mrs. Reichmann Thursday.

"I don't really mind, but I've been excused from two juries already, soon as I told them who my son is," she said.

The judge said such a coincidence never occurred before in his 40 years' experience.

Postmasters Name D. W. Hall

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The Arkansas Branch of the National League of Postmasters named Donald W. Hall of West Memphis postmaster of the year during its annual convention, which closed here Tuesday.

Humphrey to Speak at AP Meeting

NEW YORK (AP) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey will be the speaker at the annual meeting of The Associated Press April 25.

President Paul Miller of The AP said in his announcement the vice president had promised a major address, touching, among other topics, on Viet Nam, where Humphrey recently visited.

Humphrey's swing through Viet Nam was part of a nine-nation Asian tour which he completed Feb. 23. He said then he was satisfied that the "tide of battle has turned" and that the Communists ultimately would be beaten.

The United States will stay in Viet Nam, Humphrey said in reporting on his trip, until "genuinely free elections can be held."

"If the Viet Cong, in those elections, gain honestly a voice in government, so be it," he said. "But prior to elections, this government will not be a party to any settlement which amounts to a preselection victory for Communism which cannot be won at the polls."

"I, for one, doubt that the South Vietnamese people will give that victory to the Communists," the vice president went on. "No Communist government has ever come to power through free election, and I doubt that one ever will."

Humphrey defined the U.S. course in Viet Nam as a difficult one, "neither of withdrawal nor of massive escalation, but of measured use of strength and perseverance in defense both of ally and principle."

The occasion for his speech will be a luncheon in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel bringing together 1,500 U.S. and Canadian newspaper, radio and television executives and their wives.

Past speakers at the luncheons have included Presidents Eisenhower and Johnson.

The AP annual meeting will open at 10 a.m. EDT with a one-hour show covering activities of the cooperative newsgathering association during the past year. A business session including an election of officers will begin at 11 a.m.

The AP meeting is an opening feature of New York's annual Newspaper Week every April. The meeting precedes the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Speakers in recent years have included, in addition to Johnson and Eisenhower, Gov. George W. Romney of Michigan, and astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Miller, president of Gannett Newspapers, Rochester, N.Y., will preside at the meeting.

Red Chinese Not Serious Says Rusk

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk says Red China isn't seriously interested in improving its relations with the United States.

The Chinese Communists continue to display "militancy, bitterness, hatred," Rusk said. He added U.S. officials "have to deal with the situation as we find it. And we do not find at the present time a serious interest in Peking in improvement of relations."

The secretary said "a good deal of Communist China's isolation is self-imposed."

But he voiced strong hope that the world's nuclear power — including Red China — can move promptly toward a treaty to ban the spread of atomic arms.

At his first news conference in seven weeks, the secretary of state said Friday there is a "central underlying attitude" among nuclear nations that atomic "proliferation is dangerous and undesirable."

Rusk himself brought up the subject of possible Chinese participation in a nuclear ban.

The Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France, "and possibly even Peking are agreed it's not a good thing to see the proliferation of nuclear weapons," he said.

Rusk said the United States is considering recognizing Communist-ruled Outer Mongolia, a pro-Soviet state tucked between the Soviet Union and China in mainland Asia. He declined to predict when action might be taken.

He also made these points at the news conference:

—The United States is urging its allies to go slow in selling to Communist China "materials that might aid to China's 'silence of war.'" He referred to West European plans, announced in West Germany, to sell a $150-million steel plant to Red China.

Many Think China's Mao Seriously Ill

HONG KONG (AP) — Mao Tze-tung's fourth-month absence from public functions plus a greatly stepped up press-radio campaign to keep his name before the public has some Western experts here believing the Chinese leader is seriously ill.

They believe other Peking leaders are worried that growing public awareness of Mao's absence because of failing health could lead to increasing unrest among the Chinese people.

Others, however, speculate that Red China's operating hierarchy is debating major policy changes, including possible better relations with Moscow. They believe Mao may be deliberately staying aloof from that debate in order to re-emerge as the untarnished father-leader of Chinese communism once China's new policy direction is determined.

Since Mao dropped from public view, Peking's official People's Daily has more than doubled the headlines and space it has devoted to his "thoughts" and "teachings."
